Highlands Ability Battery and Programs

The Highlands Ability Battery is a state of the art assessment tool designed to reveal natural abilities. Combined with a comprehensive written report and personalized feedback session, participants gain a clear understanding of how they learn, communicate and solve problems, as well as defining what environments and arenas are most conducive to satisfaction and productivity. A powerful, permanent process for educational and career planning, team building, leadership development, and human resource management.

“Gail was the consummate professional at every stage... From our contracting conversation exploring the potential value of the (Highlands Ability) Battery in informing assistant principals of the need to understand both their own natural abilities as well as those whom they lead, to the coaching conversations she conducted with each of 16 participants responding to questions and engendering appreciation for the assessment process, to whole-group sessions deepening collective ability to leverage the assessment in their work as school leaders, Gail’s performance was well delivered and well received.”
